

PORORO IS MISSING...

Put the verbs in the present or past simple

It(be) late in the evening. It(be) foggy and chilly and the streets(be) empty.

Pororo(come) back home. She(walk) down the shadowy street. She(want) to be back in her comfortable room as quickly as possible. That's why she(decide) to take a short cut. She(not know) that place very well. The street(seem) so dark and unfriendly. She(feel) tired and she(wonder) what she should make for dinner. "I'll have some hot chocolate and a croissant", she(think). "And I definitely need a hot bath", she(say) quietly.

Suddenly she(hear) some footsteps behind her. Pororo(shudder) but she(keep) walking. She secretly(look) behind her but she(not notice) anything or anyone. "What the hell," she(whisper).

Then out of nowhere a black cat(cross) the road just a few steps in front of her and(run) somewhere in a hurry. "My goodness. Now I'm even scared of cats,"(laugh) nervously.

And then she(have) a bad feeling. Someone(follow) her. Pororo(get) scared and she(run) now. She(be) about to turn right into another narrow street when she(trip) over something. On the pavement in front of her she(see) a child's shoe covered with blood. "Oh my God", Pororo(cry) desperately.

To be continued....