

Sister

My best friend and confidante.

When I think about what the perfect sister should be like, I realize she should be a great listener, and someone you can say anything to and share anything with. She should prop you up when you feel down and love laughing with you during good times. The perfect sister is a true-blue best friend, and someone who is honest, genuine and caring. She loves you unconditionally and lets you know it frequently.

It also occurs to me that I've just described you to a tee!
