

ANCESTOR MAD LIBS

OUTLAW FRANK PARMENTER

"Put your hands up" said the PUMPKIN (noun). "You're under arrest for FLYING (verb ending in ing) the OSTRICH (noun) at the SPEEDBOAT (noun)." "AY CARAMBA (exclamation)!" thought Frank. His hands were LAUGHING (verb ending in ing) like RACCOON EYES (noun - plural) on a BATHTUB (noun). This wasn't the first time he had FRIED (verb - past tense) a BOWLING BALL (noun) and he knew he was in CRAZY (adjective) trouble. Just moments before Frank ROLLED (verb - past tense) into a CASTLE (noun) and DRIPPED (verb - past tense) a ROCKETSHIP (noun) and a DOG (noun). He was spotted and a big GIRDLE (noun) chased after him and POKED (verb - past tense) him in the ELBOW (noun - a body part). Now Frank was surrounded and had no choice but to surrender. So it was off to FRANCE (noun - a place) for Frank. Frank was the VIOLET (adjective - a color) sheep of his AIRPLANE (noun), always PARTYING (verb ending in ing) into trouble. It started when Frank DRIVE (verb - past tense) a ELF (noun) from a neighbor and EAGERLY (adverb) rode the TOOTH (noun) home. Back in those days, EYEBALLS (nouns - plural) were as
