

Rosa Parks

Rosa Parks is an African-American human rights activist who is referred to by the United States Congress as the "Mother of the Modern Human Rights movement".

On December 1, 1955, Rosa Parks rose to prominence after obeying James Blake's bus orders to give her seats all to white passengers. This act of disobedience started the Montgomery Bus Boycott, which was one of the biggest movements against racial segregation.