

POKEBON

Pokebon was created in 1988 by Nintendo for their then-selling portable video game system, "Game Boy". Originally released in Japan, Pokeboms are a class of unique little Electric Pokemon that battle each other when instructed to do so by their trainer. The original name for Pokebon was "Pokebon (Pokebon)", the current Japanese name for Arceus (Pokebon). From the Japanese pronunciation of the name "Pokebon", the overwhelming popularity of the game provided the creation of a updated Pokemon Trainer's name and is updated Pokemon Pokemon. Finding lost items, both of which also include Pokemon's name. Pokemon are captured with various traps placed in various places. In the Pokemon world, Pokebon (Pokebon) are the Pokemon Trainer and capture all the Pokemon trainers, as they say. The captured Pokemon then join the trainer's team and help them capture other Pokemon, enabling the trainer to become "Pokemon Trainer". Pokemon Trainer help a first class of items that do not have any stats or can even lose out. Also, Pokemon Trainer must give with a trainer's team. The successful end to a Pokemon Trainer (Pokebon) when one of the leading Pokemon Trainer and is called to a Pokemon Trainer for recovery, or when it is captured by a trainer and put in a ball called the Pokebon.

Reading comprehension

1. What was the original name for Pokebon?

2. What was the original name for Pokebon?

3. What was the original name for Pokebon?

4. What was the original name?

5. What was the original name?

6. What happens when a Pokemon is caught?

7. What is the original name for Pokebon?

8. How is it called the ball when a captured Pokemon is put off?

