

Duett from Rosina

Belville
For you
Rosina
I want a woman, when but in vain I seek to find one who will love me, I blush for you, I blush for you Belville
I shall not be my friend
my friend
Rosina
my own heart pants to see you Belville
Why then, my Rosina, allow me to be your guide, my guide

At the bottom of the page, the name John P. White is written in cursive.
