

When we're home, we put research aside

There are more important things to do

Since Rob and I are both scientists, we're often asked if we talk "shop" when we're at home. That is we very rarely talk about our research or any kind of science for that matter. It's so much more likely to find us talking about our children, what plans we have for the weekend, or discussing what's best it is to do the dishes. When the lab coats come off, we're just Mom and Dad. Family is most important.
